Advanced Placement (AP) Exams

Over the coming days, College Board will be in touch with AP students and teachers to understand how they're preparing for AP Exams and what additional information or resources they may need. Later next week, College Board plans to share information with AP teachers about their students' exam-taking intentions.

AP exams will be taken online this year so College Board will be sending emails to AP students explaining the process. They will be using the email address students used when they signed up for the exam.

For most subjects, the exams will be 45 minutes long, plus an additional 5 minutes for uploading. Students will need to access the online testing system 30 minutes prior to the test to get set up. Click on the links below for more information. Additional emails will follow with more information.
